Business Relationship with the Country of Sudan

Dear Mr. Johnson,

We refer to your letter to Dr. Schulz of April 13, 2006 and your questions on ThyssenKrupp's business relationship with Sudan, which we would like to answer summarized below:

- (1) Does ThyssenKrupp, a subsidiary of ThyssenKrupp, or joint venture thereof („Affiliated Business Entity“) engage in any direct or indirect business activity in Sudan? If yes, identify the name and nature of such business and how long has such business been taking place?
- (2) What portion of ThyssenKrupp's or any Affiliated Business Entity's current revenue stream is from any direct or indirect business activity in Sudan, and what portion of the company's or Affiliated Business Entity's total assets were used to earn said revenue?
- (3) Has ThyssenKrupp or any Affiliated Business Entity made a capital investment in Sudan?
- (4) Has any ThyssenKrupp or Affiliated Business Entity entered into any licensing agreement with the Sudan government in order to engage in current or future business activities?
- (5) Is ThyssenKrupp or Affiliated Business Entity doing any business with a corporation that is owned by the Sudan government?
- (6) How many ThyssenKrupp or Affiliated Business Entity employees are in Sudan?
- (7) What fees and/or taxes do ThyssenKrupp and/or any Affiliated Business Entity pay to the Sudan government and what are the fees and/or taxes for?

(8) Has your company adopted and implemented policies and procedures for operating in Sudan?

(9) Has ThyssenKrupp or any Affiliated Business Entity done anything to promote and/or protect human rights from the atrocities taking place in Sudan?

In fiscal 2004/2005 which ended on September 30, 2005, sales with customers in Sudan amounted to € 800,-. This sales stemming from the sale of spare parts was generated via an external company representative. The business relationship with this representative has been terminated. To the best of our knowledge, there were no business relationships with Sudan beyond these sales.
